For instance, chrysanthemm seeds will germinate in from live to ten days, but the plants require a very ong season of growth before flowering, aml the person who gets ahead of Jack Frost must sow the seeds not later than March first - and cather, if possible. With varieties which germinate quickly, graw rapidly and bloom early, the sow ing should be delayed at least a month, to avoid the trouble of repeated transplantings, to prevent the seedling plants from getting "leggy" and weak .- Sabur-leather Disnufacturer has advanced the theory, the result of his observations, that fashions in shoes develop through periods of at least four years; beginning lu an ultra-fashionable circle, the next year this the high-grade trade adopting gamy, is, look at it how you will, a bad the fashion, next the medium, and then the cheap trade. The popularity of fashlons or lines of goods may extend beyon a year, but the trade percolates through the grades of largers in the mentioned manner. In this way he believes th popularity or tan shoes will move. Th isluess is now in the fashionable or blob-grade period, and another year wil find it working down a grade; and so on till in a few years the tans will be for gotten for some other style of shoes.

Patent leather has experienced aimos this evolution. A few years ago it was the ideal material for shoes; now it is of less importance, but when one style of leather is the leader in popularity, all other styles are to be found among the staples. The patent leather shoe is always salable. No one recalls the thur during the past to find tan leather goods in the market.

The next few years will be brown ones, on the utility of tau leather is becoming understood, and h will be driven on with difficulty. The coming month is expected to inaugurate a great demand for spring goods

among retailers, and as it is known that wholesalers and jobbers are not properly supplied to meet any sudden and large denand, it will be necessary for them to either stock up very soon or when the demands are mode on them throw up the While it is generally conceded that the crown leather shoe has largely superseded

the ranvas shoe in popularity, orders for anyas lines have recently been placed with shoe manufactorers, and both white and colored goods are desired. Manufacturers of these lines are encouraged t believe that there will be a steady demaa for these comfortable sines, even if it does not reach the dimensions of former years. The neat styles, the excellent orkmanship and the unquestioned com fort of canvas slows, are expected to maintain them in favor in spite of the raze for tans.

Testimonials have been received, from different quarters, commending the exrelient qualities of the shoes received b etailers for the spring and summer sale t has been openly claimed that customers will get better goods for their mosey than was the case last year with no chang in prices. With the effort of manufacturers to grade op their products, and t naintalu high grades in all lines, it ca hardly be expected that customers wil want to go hack to cheaper prices a very soon. High grades are maintained Improve the improved -- floston Transcript.

The ballots for town officers are in and counted and the result is what was gener nily expected The town is is atill on the No License list and with a gain of 40 un on the other side of the water question, but with the same gain another year which they made this they will be with the majority. The election is over but the most important part of the work Is yet before us end every voter, who cau, should attend the meeting next Mominy and not only at rend, but attend early and nill bisy. would fore add that a personal attendance is worse than no attendance at al unless n voter has got inind enough and I sand enough to vote.

The regular meeting of the Monda club was held in the Congregational church, East Weymouth, on March 2. Miss Grace Sprague of the Current Events committee read an exceedingly interesting paper covering recent events in the fields of music, art and literatura.

The program for the afternoon cor sisted of nu organ recital in charge of Mr. Arthur M. Raymond and the large audlence which had assembled, completely filling the charch in spite of the inclemen weather, was certainly strong evidence of the pupularity of Mr. linymond with

Monday club members and their friends. Mr. Haymond was ably assisted by his daughter, Miss Ethel F. Rnymond, planist and Mr. 11. Nelson Itaymond, barltone, and the concert which they gave was a delight to all music lovers. The program

The regular meeting of the Old Colony clah on Friday, February 28th, was largely attended. The teachers in all parts of the town were guests of the club, there being but one session held in the schools. Mrs. L. Weston Attword and Miss Helen Hichards gave a line rendering of the Overture to Tannhauser. The noble music seemed a fitting prelude to: Professor Griggs' lecture on "Art for Life's Professor Griggs feels that there hope for America, that some of the smazing energy we have shown in material things is heginning to be devoted to ar and the higher life, though we are still hehind Europe. He spoke of three popu lar misconceptions which impede our progress. t. That art is a polite adornment. to be caltivated only after the serious 2. That art is only praiseworthy when it has a moral tucked on. 3. The familian phrase, "Art for prt's sake," which to often is interpreted by artists to mean art for technique's sake. The truly great never allow themselves to think of technique as an end.

Professor Griggs pointed out the unity in different fields of art. Aeschyln Michael Augelo, and Heethoven are brothers lu the Titanic strength of their thought; Sophocles, Haphael, and Mozart in their delleacy and finish: Heine (or Burns), Audrea Del Sarto, and Chopin In the appeal of their personal revelation. Art is ever the same, yet ever new. How far cyll ought to be embodied in art is portraved. It must be made agly, as Danta and Shakespere made it. Art raises life to a plane of more adequate expression. Shakespere's characters say what people what they want to, and say it perfectly Art is the adequate and harmonions ex pression and interpretation of some phase of man s life in trns relation to the whole. Active self expression clarifies the mind With artistic achievement comes power to achieve, power to see, capacity to live Lesser men live to sing or paint, great mea slag or paint to live. Browning understood this best; he says that through art we become the image of God. Living is the greatest art. As with the creative artist, the same is true in a less degree for the stadent who appreclates. All response to artistic beauty lifts us in car power to see the significance of daily life. and makes higher achievement possible Art is serious business for life's sake.

The aext meeting will be held on March 12th and will be a masical in charge of Arthur M. Itaymoud, assisted by Mis-Josephiae Kulght, sopraso: Miss Margaerite Pearson, violinist; Mass Ethel F. liaymond, plantst. Following is the program:

Odd Use For Brand. Perhaps the most novel use to which bread is put may be seen in one of oar tory is quoted as saying "There is no secret regarding the use leg to tell all I can concerning it. From the earliest times in the history of watchmaking it has been the custom of watchmaking it has been face the constitution watchmakers to reduce fresh brend to the form of dough. This is alone by steaming and knowling. They then uso his dough for removing oil and chips that naturally adhere in course of manufacture to pieces as small as a part of a watch. There are many parts of a watch, by the way, that are so small us to be barely visible to the naked eye. The oil is absorbed by this dough and the chips stick to it, and there is no other known substance leaving some of its particles uttached to the thing wifed. This accounts for

The State Commission on Industrial Education (hiday) saturdized his report to he Legislature in regard to the establishcent by the State of Massachu cits of a echnical school or industrial college. his was as illrected, by section 6 of chaper 595. Acts of 1906, which reads in part s follows: "and repetally shall the com" issing consider and report at an enriv day open the ndvisability of establishing one or more technical schools or indus trial colleges, providing for a three or four years' course for extended training n the working principles of the larger ndustries of the Coumonwealth " The connelssion found it necessary orebler the following points concerning the establishment of such a school or chools: first, the objects to be acronlished; second, the views of representatives of existing Massachusetts colleges echnical character; third, the views of employers in a great number of the larger idestries of the Commonwealth; fourth, deas of the corpored: liftle views of the litterested public; sixth, mot nonly, the views and suggestions of the officers and special advisers of the commission. n reaching its conclusions the commision found it necessary to biform itself on the work of a number of schools of similar character which have been estab lished elsewhere, such as the Laweil In-stitute School for Industrial Faremen, Buston, the Lewis Institute at Cidengo, carlous higher industrial schools in tiermany and Switzerland. An exhaustive account is contained in its report of the curriculums of the many schools and industrial colleges, visited by a member of the commission and its secretary in Germany, Switzerland and other Enropean countries, and from the working schedules obtained from them it will be possible for the commission to utilize this knowledge In the possible establishment of a higher school or schools such as contemplated by the State in Massachusetts.

The objects which the State nims to accomplish in the establishment of the higher technical school or schools are farseen and important. Today, in the United States, men are not being developed in the imbistries for the middle and lower supervisory positions. As has been often poluted out of late, the trades are w much illelded that even an able man in an industry has an opportunity, as a rule, to learn only one branch or one department of his trade. Such a man may hope to become the head of that department if the Industry is large enough to warrant the employment of a superintendent for that particular department; but if the supervising is done by a mnn who has charge of several departments, it is not only impractical but practically impossible, under present circumstances, for him to fit himself for such a supervisory position. As result, it has been found impossible for men in lower nositions to fit themselves for higher positions from their shop ex

There is a demand from the more ener getic, earnest workers in this State for in opportunity to learn the theory of their trades in the particular sense of the word This is shown by the large numbers who enter upon correspondence achool lastruc-tion, and by inquiries made by workmen of those who comfact evening courses for the employed, as well as by statements of representatives of labor. There are at present no well-planued courses in justitutions in the Commonwealth, with perans one exception, which meet the need of these sinhitious men. It is the opinion of the Commission on Industrial Education, as the result of a long, intelligen and carnest investigation, that an imiustrial college, providing day and evening coarses for such individuals, would till a long-felt want. Such schools have been markedly successful in other countries, and this fact may in part account for th assertion, often made, that a very large percentage of the foremen in Massachusetts imhistries are foreign born nac foreign educated.

------ESTREE shifted in his seat, set tied his eyeginsees more firmly upon his nose and, with his gloved hands folded on the top of his came, turned his glance ugalu o the field of play, tin all sides of ilm men and women were abandoning themselves to excesses of enthusias but his cold neutral tluted eyes fol inwed the movements of the muddy figures on the grilliron without a trace off excitement, though they lost no ile-talls of the idny.

"I beg your pardon"—Desirro's high diched, nervous vulce cut inclaively into the throaty cheer of which the unn heat to him was delivering him "but can you tell me wha is the kindred man at tackle?" "Habblington," snapped the other shortly and turned again to his cheor-

ing, while Desbro murmured courteuu Turning a poir of fieldglasses upon the Beld, Desbro watched the siruggling figures intently for a few mo-ments; then, laying the bluoculars ashle and lighting a cigarette, he com-menced to talk to himself in a low tone, oblivious of his surroundings. "A matchiesa physique," he muttered, "coupled with a face which might have been Adam's-as devolt of th So. Weymouth. Mass. spark of intelligence as an ox's—the very embodiment of the game he is playing."

It intent gaze noted a sudden congestion of the padded figures below him and an eager craning of necks from the scats of the big stand. One of the opposing players by atretched on the turf writhing in pain, while a group of the visiting eleven's supportrs leaned from their seats and point ed impotently accusing fingers at the man called Babbligton, who atood looking dawn at the prestrate figure with his hands on his massive hips. A cold little aneer gathered about the corners of Desbro's munth as he watched the incident,
"What' callousness," he exclaimed softly, "what savagely unconscious calousness! Is the man an anachronist or only a brute? Such simple minded nuconcern for physical agony caused by one's own hands is the mark of nere coarseness or a throwback. "I must see more of this strango nan," he told himself and walked to the gymnashun, where he sat for an hour gazing at the ceiling with a preoccupied air. When Babhington's great bulk emerged from the door lead-ng to the batha an hour later, Deshro ose and walked to meet libu. "Mr. Babblagton?" he asked. "My name is Deshro," he went on rapidly, his suddenly keen eyes searching the other's face. "I came from thu

"NO," HE ANSWERED; "THIS IS WHAT CAME FOR." and I thought possibly you might give me news of an old friend, Morton-Harold Morton. Did you happen to

"Mortan?" he said slowly. "Morton? No, don't believe I knuw him."
"Ah, of caurae," Deabro hastened to say, "I thought perhaps" - And he wove a few sentences of easy fiction before turning abruptly on his heel. A few hours later he sat in the billiard room of his fraternity house listening curiously to the talk of the men which centered about the game of the afternoon. The comments were all lively, enthusiastic, on the team's chances, on the individual prowess of the men, and constantly recurring in the hum of conversation was Babbington's name. "The finest type of n player the crop of new men has produced," a fair hair ed man with a big voice called from une end of the smoky room. "Right you are!" Desbra broke in suddenly. The men around the tables turned in oatonishment, for to have Desbro offer comment on matters of this nature was unusual.

"Right you are, I say," he repeated, leaning back in his chair and survey. ing the curious faces through his ginases. "This man is the very embod-inust of the spirit tostered by this beautiful game of yours-built for u human chopping block or battering ram, as the case may demand! ly, and every eye in the room followed Dealtro's startled glance to the door-way, where, turning his came in his hands and starling int the spenker with an expression wholly indescribable, stood Bahbington. For o moment there was the dead silicute of uter emhar-rassment; then one by one the men turned to the tables, while Bahbington t alungual his throat and stocke "I came to see if possibly I hadn't misumlerstood you," he said, turning to Deshro. "That name you mentioned was Morton, wasn't it?" Destro, redder than any man had ever seen him, nodded without speak-

"I thought possibly I hadn't understood," Balddagton evidulised, backing awkwardly out of the door, "and I did known man mined Horton."

A few moments later bester passed the door of the lilliand room, wearing the raincoat and stouch hat which he invarially were on the evening walks which were as much a part of bis ex stence as life meals

No man pretended to know the adject of these nightly walks of Deshre's. To all Inquiries he responded that "they give him a chance to think without inlerruption."
At the gate Design paused to light a cigarette, and the dare of the match as he shielded it from the snippy the tober what brought his thin features into prominence ngainst the darkness. Into prominence ngainst the darkness. Inhibitington, standing under a tree not a dozen yards away, turned as the sulphur sputtered and saw. His great hand elinetied instinctively into a fist, and he had already taken a step forward when Desbro turned and started quickly down the street.

Italidington waited a few moments

then stepped lightly on to the sidewalk and followed, quietly at tiest and then without caution as bestro paid no attention to the footfulls behind him. He glunced now and then at the receding lights and then increased the length of lights and their increased the legal of his strides as Deshro's parises throb-hed through his mind. "Social impossibility?" he muttered, gritting his teeth over the parase. "I'll struggle had commenced within him and that the lirst heat of unger was passing. He grew ashamed of his rowing calmness, fearful lest the coolng influence of the walk rob him of he merited retallation which he knew ils massive arms could administer. Desbro atopped abruptly to light auother eigarette, and his pursuer haited in the midst of a stride. For an inatant he paused brresolute, divided be tween the lingering desire to close his lingers on Desbro's neck and a sudden impulse to run, to get away from ev-erything, back to the life where other a had lived and talked like himself The hotter sensition trimuphed, and Bublington had taken three quick Illhe steps toward his victim when, silent as the shadows from which they sprang, a little knot of men threw themselves at Desigo. The shock of the attack not only drove from Habblugton's mind every veslige of his own wrath, but bereft him for an instant of the power of mo-tion. He heard Desbro give a low exclamation and saw by the last tlicker of the match the slight figure attrusting to shield itself by leaping bebinan iron pole. In another instant hu found hinself in the center of a press of struggling tigures. He received blows and felt the impact of his hand against flesh us he returned them. "Where are you, Deshro?" he shout-

All's Fair In Love.

By Canstones D'Arcy Macksy. Copyrighted, 1908, by P. C. Eastment

On the veranda of a tria cottage facing the sen itelert Aldrich, tall, fair haired and athletic, sat and glowered at Miss Hildegarde Farney, while the latter put up a small sunfrowned hand to lide a yawn.

The night before she had driven ten miles across country to the little town of tirantly, where she had witnessed n performance of atrolling players as appritedly as poor scenery sud cos-tumes would sllow, and she had been dly illisting to Ahlrich on the artors of the piece, the too bombastle tragelian, the amusingly ingendous rom dian and the little soubrette who looked like a piece of Dresden rhina. Alirleh listened with a frown. "I don't rare if your aunt did rhap-gran you," he burst out. "What I ob-pet to is the fact that you went with Percy Graham at all. Every one knows ho's a rad,"

"What right has he to come down here and butt in like this? It just shows what an infernal bounder he

"He's only been here three days, murmured Miss Farney.
"Yet he's managed to monopolize most of them. See here, Hildegarde, do you think you're playing the game

When Hildegrade Farney spoke in that tone it was time to slop. But tho thought that was apperment in both their minds, though anexpressed, was the fart that Percy Graham was the owner of three millions. In these days of large fortunes it was not an astouniing aum, yet to Aldrich it loomed largo as a mountain. He knew that ttildegarde wan what he phrased "straight and that this latest caprice of hers inight not last the week out Still, as even the faintest possibility of losing her gave his heart a terrific wrench, and since illidegarde's aunt, Miss Norris, looked on Percy Graham with an eye of worldly wisdom as well as critical appraisement, it behooved young Aldrich to see to his laurels, and Percy Graham had money and an ibnormal supply of cheek. Aldrich had brains and plurk and an income from his growing law practice of auch pro-portions that he did not hesitate to ask portions that he did not nesture.

Miss Farney to share it with him.

That Hildegarde should really care for Percy Graham was an idea too pre-las! There was no sure way of following the inhyrinths of the femining Aldrich straightened suddenly "I was a beast just now," he said quirkly. "What I said of Graham is true, but it's not my husiness to run "What I said of Graham Is him down. If you want a good time In awhile what chums we've been, won't you?" And Aldrich swung himself over the porch rall and smiled lack at her as he took his way to the hotel farther down the beach where he was spending his vacation.

As he walked he caught aight of I'er Flint of Probate and involvency, James H. Register of Probate and involvency, John D. Register of Probate and involvency, John D. Assistant Register, J. Raphael McCoole.

"I'vo just been asking Miss Farne; about you," drawled Perry Graham.

Aldrirh glared at him cheerfully. "Thanks. Always glad to have my friends inquire. Ah, good afteruoon, Misa Norris," as tilidegarde's aunt ap eared in the doorway, while behi her appeared the face of a pretty Irish servant. Miss Norris looked anusually erturbed. "That red haired boy from the village grocery store has been frightening Mary Ellen with abourd rarde, "In Mr. Graham's car!" ""Tia flying in the face of evil for-tunu they are," walled Mary Ellen, "and 'its myself that will lock up all the doors and sit close by Julia, that cook, till they come back again." The road through the gypsy camp lay through au undulating bit of country. Pines grew on either haml, casting a twilight gloom, deep, cool, im-penetrable. Hidden brooks tinkled over moss and publies. Itird songs sounded through the stillness as clear-ly sweet as allver flutes. Suddenly a turn of the road brought the gypsy camp late view, some three or four tents pitched in a mendow against a background of hirch and itr. In the foreground by a huge black

The weather beaten crone left he seat by the fire and hobbled forward. Simultaneously Graham and Aldrick ossed her a coin with which to rros Miss Farney's haad. She jacked up the money, looked at the givers nar-rowly and then bent to her task. "What a Itomsny reads had best be read alone," she muttered, with a twist of her thin lips.

Aldrich langhed. "I guess we can take a bint, ch, Graham?" he cried, and the two mea atrolled toward the teuts and walted. It was as much us five minutes before illidegarde and her aunt joined them, lildegarde quite pale and Miss Norris with a furrow between her brows. "I have always said there was something weird about gypaies," asid Miss Narris, "and that old womau'a knowledge

And the self satisfied owner of three millions would have been amazed at the gishee that flashed between Hildegarde and Robert Aldrich if he had seen it. He would have been event more anazed had he watched young Ablrich next morning riding off to ward the gypsy cumpent sunrise.

When he reached it, the old hag of the day before was the first to enteh alght of him. When Temperance Was a Crimo. Temperance in India at the beginning of the English occupation was rrime," said a clergyman. "Mediral men believed in those days that a white man could not five in India without drinking. They thought he needed a half plat of whisky or its equivalent every day, and they insisted on his taking it. Temperance societies, total abstinence and the signing of the piedge were things fortidden in India. Such things were thought ininrious to the white man's health out there; hence to go in for them was to be arrested, fined, imprisoned, banish ed. But today in India total abstifound that the abstalner stands th heat far better than does the man who drinks."-Philadelphia Bulletin.

Caution on Transfers.

Michael D'Brien, a japitor to the City Hall at Fall Hirer, pleaded gullty in the district court of that city Friday to a charge of using street car transfers illegally, brought by the Old Colony Street Railway Co. As this was the first charge of the kind ever brought by the compasy there was no disposition on its part to jush the case and lealency of the court was asked for by the company's coapsel. The case was therefore placed on file upon payment of costs.

Witrien had been in the habit of using a transfer dally issued to another janltor of the Chy Hall who secured it on his way to relieve O'llrien and the latter used ounsel, Judge Fred S. Hall, 'explained that this practice of persons using transfers Issued to others has grown to such an extent of late that the receipts of 'the company have been materially effected and it had been determised to attempt to put stop to it by presecutions. He gave warulug that in future cases courts would be asked to impose a substantal fine. It is stated by the company that this lilegal use of transfers is quite prevalent in all sections, and that while in the past it has been allowed to go on with no attende at prosecullos a determined effort will henceforth be made to stamp it out This case was the first in which drastle measures have been used but it is intended that if this does not serve as a wariding other prosecutions will follow.

LORD KELVIN'S SUMS.

Slips of an Absentmended Dentiat In Great scientist though he was, the late Lord Kelyla somethies falled to do simple addition or suldraction so correctly. Tince on a blackboard at Chasgow aniversity be made two and two live and, hearing the delighest laughter of the class, hastily aftered the five to a three. In another occathe five to a large than another accasion he said, "Seven times nine, Mr. Macfarlame, are a lumbred and what?" (Pause.) "But, no," continued the selentist, "seven times nine caunot by a hundred and anything, for the square of a immired is ten."

How he nearly lost his life through his devotion to science was told by Lord Kelvin himself to the house of lords some years ago. He was en-gaged in testing certain chemical ingredients which could be safely mixe together in particular proportions, lan which became a filghly explosive mix ture if the weight of one element wa exceeded. His assistant in adjusting the difference between the decimal sys tem and ordinary troy weight in ured out a quantity which would have meant certain death to both and was just miding it to the mortar who Lord Kelvin noticed the inistake.

Mr. Barnickel's Portrait

When Mr. Barnickel gof rich the Erst thing he wanted was a crest, which he found, though his fitte to it was rather thin, as I she next was his was rather thin, as the hoper portrait to Lang in his drawing room and to hand down to his descendants as the lineaments of the relustitutor of the family. Armost 120 at was at that time the principal portrait painter in the city where Mr. Barnickel fived. and to him Mr. Harnickel gave the or-ther, agreeing to pay for the portrait Now, although Mr. Harnlekel had dealt in lides, an article not calculated to stimulate the imaginative family. to stimulate the longinative faculty, life buagination was strong. The mo-ment he set himself up us a relastifu-tor of his family he saw thuself a fibe-locking, digailled gentleman of aristo-eratte mien and benevolent counte-nance. In truth, he was a craffy look-ling may with a manny problem. lng man with a money making nose tie saw the picture of blinself grow ing up in the lands of the arrist as he was and not as he thought blusself. the made several protests, but when he attempted to point out the errors he signally fulled. He could not give the artist his conception of biniself. and the artist had no chidee but to paint him as Mr. Barnickel. When the partralt was flushed, there sat the merchant looking for all the world as if he were lmyling a cargo of hilles When Mr. Barnickel saw the portrait he refused to accept it on the ground that his best friend wouldn't take it

As soon as Mr. Elliott got a little spare time he hooked Mr. Barnlekel's portrait up ngainst the wall of his studio, covered it with a sheet of drawing paper and on the paper skelched prison bars. This done, he cut out the paper between the bars, leaving Mr. Barnickel in Ilmbo. Underneath he placed the title of the placeture, "A Prisoner For Debt." It was not long before one who knew Mr. Barulckel well saw him behind bars. Had he loved Mr. Barnickel he would have gone to him at once with the information. But in alidn't love Mr. Barnickel-few people did-so be went about felling those who know the went atout tening those whicknew tab-hide dealer of the rare sight to be-seen, and Mr. Elliott's studio at once became very popular, tudeed, from among those who visited it to see "A Prisoner For Debt" he secured a numher of orders.

The episode at last reached a meniber of the Barnickel family, and the family head was informed. The same morning he drove up to Mr. Elllott's studio, alighted in a harry, elimbed the stairs in anger and burst into the studia in a passion. There hang the ple-lare, and there sat the ariist quiescent at his easet. What do you mean by pecpetrating that outrage?" shonted Mr. Harnickel, nointing to the pleture.

"What oulrage?" asked the artist without discontinuing his work. without discontinuing his work.
"Putting my portrait behind tars."
"Your portrait? That isn't your portrait. You said yourself that no one would recognize it." The merchant saw that he could not demand the removal of the objectionuble features without eating his words He went out, slamming the door be-hind him. He had been triumphant in too many deals to be heaten by a ple-ture maker; he would that a way to get round the "imposition." But before he found this way he heard that a new feature had been attached to the portrait. The artist had removed the bars and the title, replacing the latter with the words "You Want Too Much."

The title fitted the expression on the face so welt and Mr. Barnickel's idlo-syncrasies were so keenly appreclated that a new lot of people came pouring into the studio to see tild Scrouge, as they called him, buying lides, though some declared that he was disputing the price of his portrait. Mr. Barnickel was made aware of the change DLD NORTH CHURCH (Weymouth by receiving an anonymous letter inmiring which of these two interpreta tions of the little was correct.

By this time the merchant had co suited his lawyer, who advised him that the most satisfactory way out of the difficulty was to pay for the ide-ture and take it away. Therefore on receipt of the anonymous note he drew his check for $500, jumped into his car-riage and drove to Mr. Elliott's studio. Ou entering his eyes naturally sought the picture. The expression had been changed. Instead of Mr. Barnlekel beating down a seller, it was Mr. Bar-nlekel just baying bought at his own price. There was no title attached to the pleture. Instead a bit of cardtoard rested upon it on which in big letters was inscribed "Sold." Mr. Barnickel saw the word and was selzed with a new auxlety. He, and only he, could not see his double mean-

"There's your check. Send that daub home," he said. "I'm sorry, Mr. Bartilekel. Don't you see the card on the picture?"

"That's bosh. No one would want my"- He stopped. He was about to yield to his beating down propensities and add "ugly mug." but remembered "I don't think the purchaser cares much for it," said Mr. Elliott coolly. "You night get it at an advance on

Suburban Extensions There is a demand on the outskirts of il lowns throughout the country for the exteasion of electric tramways which in lmost every case are in the hands of the ocal authority in many instances these whitnest delay if the undertaking were in the hands of a private company with oncession sufficiently long to justify large capital expendition. The private company would then be able to take farreacking views and to lay down tramways in illstricts so sparsely populated that they would not provide "remanerative traffle" for several years, although althmately the returns would prove satisfac ory. In America it is customary to proside the tramway in advance of the popul lation by this country it is our practice to walt until the growth of a district provides sufficient traffic before a tramway enterprise is suggested. While the former method is but inframently sitended with disappointment and financial toss to those immediately concerned, there is no question that, in the loag run, it is of much public advantage. It trinks to pre vent overcrowding in the central districts encourages the people to make their honces further aileld, and thus increases the general well-being of the community The ideal policy is, of course, a comproarise between the undue baste of the speculator in land and the natural conelectric tramway on its hands which is servatism of a local anthority with an none too prosperous, and whose prospects | First Church Notes, "Old North." might be roined for a few years by roral extrusions. The smaller authorities, cannot indeed, be experted readily to push out their lines beyond their own boundarles, and the public will have to make the hest of the situation. If municipal tramway enterprise has its udvantages, it also them that will be felt more keenly as Victorious." time goes on in all compartively small communities which have made it imposwhile for milyale cultibrise to enter into elties tids disadvantage ought not to be serlous. These larger cities with great tramway recemies should be ready to posh out extensions as fast as required. It is, in fact, a duty which they have imposed on themselves by undertaking their own trammay operation, and thus preveating any other promoters from enterlug the surrounding district.

"I Kin Work lt." A busy Lawrencian recently added u telephone to the modern improvements at his home. He has four happy children, all of them young, to whom the 'phone was new and who regarded it with awe. One of the khis is a boy of four. He watched the older people call up "Central" and communicate with friends at distant points and yearned to do likewise. His mother chanced to be absent from home for an hour or so on a recent after Loon. The other children were out some where. He was atone. For a half hour he watched the telephone, then climbed up and took the receiver of the 'phone off the hook just as he had seen older people do. Hy that thie he was trembling but his courage was as strong as whilled

"Number?" he heard a sweet-voice inbut he conquered a desire to drop the revelver and run and shouted bravely, "I waat my top!" "Central" must have recognized the voice as that of a child. She promptly inquired "Who is your papa?" The little fellow knew enough to tell her, and it was but a matter of a few moments to ascertain the number of the hnsy Lawrencian's business 'phone and connect the four-year-old.

"Helto!" answered the busy citizen, turning away from a desk overburdened with parpers and things. otth, pop, I klu work it;" was the joyfor little shout that answered blut, and the bosy citizen was just as proud and as pleased as the four-year-old of the other end of the line when the brief conversation ceased and the boy, obeying lustructions given over the wire, hung up the receiver and awaited the home-coming of mamma to tell of his conquest.-Lawrence
